

E-ISSN: 2709-9369
P-ISSN: 2709-9350
www.multisubjectjournal.com
IJMT 2021; 3(1): 50-52
Received: 07-11-2020
Accepted: 13-12-2020

Hema Singla
Assistant Professor,
BMIET, Sonipat, Haryana,
India

Problem of child labour in Haryana: A comparative study of Haryana and India

Hema Singla

Abstract

The problem of child labor is a serious problem in the world, nation, region and society. The number of child laborers in India is increasing and the number of child laborers in India is higher than any other country in the world. This is a serious problem in the state of Haryana. Illiteracy, ignorance, traditional thinking, poverty and illiteracy are the main causes of child labor. Children from poor and illiterate families work for their livelihood. Poverty is a major cause of discrimination, affecting the provision of equal treatment for services such as health and education. Children under the age of 14 work in a variety of areas, including tea shops, laundry and terrace dishwashers. There are many provisions in our Constitution and law to regulate child labor, but the prevailing socio-economic conditions in India are not a matter of compulsory education of children and enjoyment of their right to education. This paper seeks to summarize the causes of child labor in Haryana and its recommendations for controlling child labor.

Keywords: Child labour, socio, economic, problem and causes

Introduction

Child Labour is a problem for many countries in the world. The world recognizes it as a burning problem seeking international attention. This increased attention is due to the fact that child labour has serious social, moral, economics and demographic implication for children, household, societies and the world. The issue of child labour has also engaged the mind of jurists, legislators, social-thinkers, politicians, economists and philanthropists from ages. The problem has changed its venues and from public platforms, it has reached the inner circle of legislative, executive and judicial chambers. Due to poverty, illiteracy and unemployment parents are unable to bear the burden of feeding their children and to run their families. So, poor parents send their children for work in inhuman conditions at lower wages. It is universally known that children are the blooming flowers in the garden of society. They are the most valuable assets of the nation and their importance in nation-building process can't be undermined. Children of today are citizens of tomorrow. The quality of life they have today would ultimately determine the quality of future population of the nation. The children have right same as other human beings to be respected with regard to their integrity, dignity, interest and opinions. Unfortunately many children in India are deprived of even the basic human rights guaranteed to them, in a civilized society. The Second National Commission on labour in India (2001) also noted that children are the future of the society and economy. Every child should have the opportunity to develop his or her skills and potential both as a citizen and as a worker.

Research Methodology

The study was based on primary data as well as secondary data. The primary data of the study has been collected through a questionnaire relating to personal details of the child labour and secondary data was collected from various journals, magazines and websites particularly from the Department of labour & employment, Ministry of labour, Census reports etc.

Child labour in India

In India the problem of child labour is quit alarming. It is observed that out of five children below the age of fourteen years, one child is labour. In India, twenty percent of children are labour out of the total population.

As per an analysis report of the International labour organisation the number of working children in the 5-14 age groups in the developing countries is 250 million. Out of 250 million, 120 million children are working on full time basis.

Corresponding Author:
Hema Singla
Assistant Professor,
BMIET, Sonipat, Haryana,
India

The magnitude of child labour is as high as 61 percent in Asian countries, followed by 32 percent in African countries and a little over 7 percent in Latin American countries (Mishra, 2000).

A UNICEF report World’s Children 2006 state that in India seventeen percent working children are under the age of 15 and girls in the 12-15 age bracket are the preferred choice of 90 percent house hold to work as domestic help.

Children are found commonly in road side restaurants, small hotels and other eat-outs, cotton ginning and weaving, match-making, stone-breaking, brick-kiln, handicrafts, automobiles and mental workshop.

Issue of child labour has constantly disturbed the mind of social thinkers and it is so acute, particular in under developed and developing countries that there is no each and short cut solution in sight. Karl Marx had observed that the result of buying children and young person by capitalist was physical deterioration unequivocally prohibits the employment of children in a factories mine or any other hazardous place of work.

Child Labour in Haryana

The child labour in the Haryana is generally found in the establishment of eat-outs, tea-stalls, restaurants and automobile repair workshop also. It has been the endeavour of the Haryana state has also prepared a ‘State Plan of Action’ for the children which is a very comprehensive document encompassing the various critical area like health, nutrition, education and environment with issue like girl child, child labour and children especially in difficult circumstances. The other state government departments which are involved in the task of rehabilitation of child labour are health, education and social welfare departments. The health department has been instructed to get the child labour medically examined and issued health cards in the districts. The project director and Director Primary education have also been requested to enrol the child labour in schools. The child labour was found in non-hazardous occupations are also being got enrolled in the primary schools and non-formal education centres.

No doubts, Haryana state is not having any child labour endemic area as per government of India norms, yet the states government is fully cognizant of its responsibility for undertaking of the programme of progressive elimination of child labour. The state government is not only trying to fulfil the constitutional and statutory obligation to lift up and rehabilitate the child labour family but also trying to bring them in the main stream of the society.

Table 1.1: Comparison of Child Labour in Haryana and India (In Absolute Amount)

Year	State (Haryana)	Country (India)	Percentage
1971	137826	10753985	1.281
1981	194189	13640870	1.423
1991	109691	11285349	0.971
2001	253491	12666377	2.001
2011	53492	4353247	1.228

Source: Ministry of Labour & Employment Census, 2011.

The above table shows the comparison of the child labour between India and Haryana. It is shows that in 1971 the child labour in Haryana were 1,37,826 children and 1,07,53,985 children in India and the percentage of child labour in Haryana was 1.28 per cent of India’s total child labour. The table reveals that in 1991 the child labour in Haryana was 0.971 per cent of total child labour of India. And after this year in 2011 the child labour in Haryana was 53,492 children and the per cent of child labour in Haryana was 1.228 of total child labour in India.

Source: Ministry of Labour & Employment Census, 2011.

Fig 1.1: Comparison of Child Labour in Haryana and India

Reasons of Child Labour in Haryana

The main reasons of child labour are poverty and illiteracy. Children from poor and illiterate families work to earn their living. Poverty is one of the main reasons for discrimination, affecting people’s access to equal treatment including services such as health and education. It leads to a vicious circle of discrimination, poverty and social exclusion. Uneducated parents remain unable to understand effects of the child labour and don’t want to keep their children away from child labour.

A. Primary reasons

- Poverty.
- Illiteracy.
- Big families.
- Inadequate school facilities.
- Child Labour as a source of labour.
- Gender discrimination.
- Religion, ideology and culture.
- Parents ignorance.

- Absence of strict implementation of compulsory education.

B. Secondary reasons

- Low wages of adult workers.
- Low living standard.
- School drop outs.
- Legal state and nationality.

C. Ancillary Reasons

- Seasonal employment.
- Discrimination.
- Poor performance in studies.
- Unsafe school environment.
- Unemployment of adult workers.
- Illness or death of the parents.
- Migration of families.
- Costly education.
- Corrupt employers.

Suggestions

1. Employment opportunities for adults can be slightly increased due to abolition of child labour. Hence, irrespective of the sector, child labour must be totally banned with immediate effect. The entry of children below the age of 14 years should be avoided in some riskless and less hazardous occupation like industries and factories.
2. Lack of awareness regarding the usefulness of education is another key reason for reading the children to workplace instead of school. In general way poor people do not have any faith regarding government school. If we want to create confidence in the minds of parents we should have to re-orient the primary, upper primary and secondary education especially in village. Free and compulsory education up to 10th class should be enforced. Improved legislation, supported by better enforcement machinery will yield positive results in this respect.
3. If the training in mechanical work will be provided in the school, their large number of child labour is weekly attending the school.
4. In India the problem of child labour is directly connected with the poverty and illiteracy. There should be ever possible efforts on the part of government and NGO's.
5. Most of the working children are living in slum-areas because of parent's poverty. The working conditions of the child workers in the different sector like organised and unorganised sector not satisfactory. Effective implementation of urban slum development programmes would certainly have some positive effect on the living conditions of the child labours.
6. Any legislation for totally prohibiting child labour amount to hardship to the poor parents and their children unless they are rehabilitated or their families are provided alternative source of income.

Conclusion

It is universally known that children are the blooming flowers in the garden of society. They are the most valuable assets of the nation and their importance in nation-building process can't be undermined. Children of today are citizens of tomorrow. Child labour can be checked only when we people have little concern about the physical, mental and educational development of children around us. It is the duty of civil society not to physical help from them but provide them their childhood.

References

1. AnsKolk, Rob van Tulder. Child Labour and Multinational Conduct: A Comparison of International Business and Stakeholder Codes. Journal of Business Ethics 2002;36(3):291-301.
2. Hjern A, Vinnerljung B, Lindblad F. A voidable Mortality among Child Welfare Recipients and Intercountry Adoptees: A National Cohort Study. Journal of Epidemiology and Community Health 2004;58(5):412-417.
3. Daniel Meyer R, Mei-Chen Hu. A note on the Antipoverty Effectiveness of Child Support among Mother-Only Families. The Journal of Human Resources 1999;34(1):225-234.
4. Diane Elias Alperin. Factors Related To Student Satisfaction With Child Welfare Field Placements, Journal of Social Work Education 1998;34(1):43-54.
5. Dimeji Togunde R, Emily Weber. Parents' Views, Children's Voices: Intergenerational Analysis of Child Labour Persistence in Urban Nigeria. International Journals of Sociology of the Family 2007;33(2):285-301.
6. Dr. Meenu. Implementation Child Labour Laws: Obstacles and Efforts. Asia Pacific Journal of Marketing & Management Review 2013;2(9).